

Hawaii's Premier Physician Management Company, TeamPraxis, Selects Allscripts Electronic Health Record for Statewide Deployment

CHICAGO, IL and HONOLULU, HI – March 12, 2008 – Allscripts, the leading provider of clinical software, connectivity and information solutions that physicians use to improve healthcare, today announced that TeamPraxis, a physician management services organization that provides technology and support services to more than 1,000 physicians in Hawaii, has purchased a statewide license for the Allscripts Electronic Health Record (EHR). The agreement enables TeamPraxis to provide the Allscripts solution to physicians across Hawaii.

“Most of us can't imagine going to the bank or having our financial records kept on paper, so why should we accept having our medical records on paper?” asked Creighton Arita, President and Chief Executive Officer of TeamPraxis. “Our partnership with Allscripts helps us fulfill our vision of serving and empowering Hawaii's physicians with real-time information at the point of care, helping to curb rising costs and to improve the quality of patient care.”

Over the last few years, Allscripts and TeamPraxis have worked together with the Hawaii Medical Service Association (HMSA), the state's largest health insurer, to provide electronic prescribing to more than 700 Hawaii physicians who are now well positioned to migrate to the full electronic health record. HMSA recently announced that it would provide $20 million in grants for physicians to acquire electronic health records. Under the initiative, 1,000 Hawaii physicians will each be eligible to receive up to $20,000 towards a new EHR.

Scott Miscovich, M.D., a family physician from Kaneohe, Hawaii, who has been using the Allscripts Electronic Health Record supported by TeamPraxis for more than two years, said the solution has “brought a full paradigm shift in the way we practice medicine. Nothing in my career has had such a profound positive influence on the way I care for patients as the electronic health record.”

Allscripts Chief Executive Officer Glen Tullman commented, “TeamPraxis has been an ideal partner for Allscripts in Hawaii. They add an understanding of the local market, a solid implementation and deployment expertise, and deliver outstanding value to medical practices by managing the technology end of our Electronic Health Record so that physicians can focus on what they do best – caring for patients.”

The Allscripts Electronic Health Record replaces paper recordkeeping by automating everyday clinical tasks such as prescribing medications, ordering and viewing laboratory tests, and documenting patient care. The solution also connects physicians and caregivers to laboratories, pharmacies, insurers and other key healthcare stakeholders, while delivering secure, immediate access to patient information at the point of care – whether in the office, at the hospital or remotely.

Through improved clinical documentation and just-in-time information, Allscripts helps to curb the rising cost of healthcare. By 2017, health care spending is expected to nearly double from 2007's projected level, reaching $4.3 trillion and consuming 19.5 percent of the gross domestic product, according to analysts at the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services (CMS).

“Our relationship with TeamPraxis provides Hawaii’s physicians with access to the right information at the right time, and allows physicians to deliver better patient care in an affordable, paper-free way,” said Mr. Tullman. “That’s what’s needed in healthcare and TeamPraxis delivers.”
